

French Polynesia

My 4 day holiday

By Emily Frawley

Temperature:

The temperature is nice and hot from January to April and then drops slightly. I find it weird how in the summer it is cooler and when it would be colder for us it is hotter on the beautiful islands. It is also very strange that you are so far away from France, yet everyone is speaking French and eating french cuisine.

Where to stay and getting there:

There are lots of islands to choose from. I would choose to stay somewhere in Moorea. I would fly to Los Angeles from London, it would be about an 11 hour flight. I would then get another flight from LA to Papeete (the capital of Tahiti and the islands), it should take around 8 hours. To get to Moorea I would need to take a 40 minute boat trip.

When I'm at Moorea I would stay in a gorgeous water bungalow in the Hotel Sofitel resort. It has an outdoor pool, in case you don't like to be in the ocean, but if you want to feel as if you were, the ocean is right beside it.

Some fun things to do on the island outside of the the hotel include:

- Snorkelling
- Shark diving
- Relaxing on a tropical beach
- Exploring tropical nature
- Experiencing the authentic culture - which is very French

It's quite a long way to go for just 4 days. But worth it!
