MIR SPACE STATION

The first modular space station to be assembled in orbit and the largest satellite in earth's orbit after 2001. By the time of the station's deorbit, it had been visited by 104 different people from twelve different nations, making it the most visited spacecraft in history (a record later surpassed by the International Space Station).

RUSSIAN SPACE PROGRAM IN THE 21ST CENTURY

Russian president Vladimir Putin noted that the first step of a crewed mission to the Moon by 2030 is creating a space station in lunar orbit "a Moon orbiter will come first. Then modules on the Moon itself will emerge. At least that is what the plans are. I hope they will come true," Putin revealed.
